Desperation or Destination?

Let's take a walk down by the pier. Two boats are floating in the bay, preparing to set sail. The captain of the first boat calls out to you: "Come aboard! We are preparing for a fantastic voyage. We have charted a course for great adventure. To be certain, we will encounter some storms but the destination ahead of us will be well worth the risk. The sights we will behold are beyond imagination. Don't delay, come set sail with us – and bring everyone you love on this fantastic journey!"

The captain of the second boat also calls out to you: "Come aboard! We are sinking fast and we need all the help we can get. Most of my crew has jumped ship! I am working hard by myself and I can't carry on much longer. We do not have a destination; our goal is to survive. If you don't get in the boat and start bailing water, this boat will sink! And please, bring your family with you!"

Which ship would you board? Now, let's connect this allegory with the church. It is difficult to get people to come aboard a sinking ship – and it is also difficult to get people to join a dying church. A mistake that some of us make is to communicate our vision for ministry as desperation rather than destination. Some of us are struggling in ministry. Some of us feel as though we are fighting just to survive. While these are real issues for many, we need to be aware of a problem. Until the Holy Spirit inspires us with a compelling vision, people will not want to join us. This is not a matter of misleading people. Certainly, the church goes through challenging times and there is risk involved. But if we do not have a desired destination in mind, we are simply floating around the ocean until we sink! Who, in their right mind, would want to join us?

People invest in vision. We are not compelled to give our money or time to a dying proposition. We want to know that we are headed somewhere. Most certainly, God has promised to lead us on life's journey until we reach heaven. The church must carry this message.

Pastor, even if you are weary and frustrated, don't desperately plead for people to help you. To be clear, we must ask people to join in the mission of the church but let's do so with vision, passion and confidence. The ship is not sinking! People are looking for purpose and meaning – the church embodies the hope of the Gospel of Jesus. Our ministry should be so compelling that people are standing in line waiting to get on board.

Is it desperation or destination? We all know that the church experiences storms. But we also know that those who sail with Jesus will find their eternal destination. "They were glad when it grew calm, and he guided them to their desired haven." (Psalms 107:30)
